

2/11/2020

To the School of Pharmacy Community of Scholars:

As Dean of the Hampton University School of Pharmacy, I would like to officially notify our entire community of scholars of the Doctor of Pharmacy program's accreditation status.

As noted by ACPE, the Hampton University School of Pharmacy's Doctor of Pharmacy program has had accreditation withdrawn by the Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education for issues of compliance with the following standard: Standard No. 17: Progression. Additionally, the Board found us to be partially compliant for Standard 24: Assessment Elements for Section I: Educational Outcomes.

Our currently enrolled students will graduate from the Hampton University program and take the licensure examination with accredited status through 2023. In fact, the ACPE order states, "...students completing the program will be provided the same rights and privileges as students enrolled and graduating from a program holding Accredited status; thus, ACPE accreditation applies through the graduation of the Classes of 2020, 2021, 2022, and 2023."

With the strong support of Hampton University's administration, I am aggressively pursuing our right to appeal the ACPE Board's decision. The School of Pharmacy is the #1 producer of African American pharmacists in Virginia and has sustained accreditation for more than a decade. Rest assured, we will continue delivering our curriculum, providing the requisite knowledge, guidance and support to all of our students.

I will continue to keep our community of scholars informed of any developments. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Anand Iyer
Dean
School of Pharmacy
Hampton University